“ My deeply heartfelt condolences to the entire family.

Fred was a real blessing to me during my high school and early college days. He was so quick with a joke.....and a wealth of information on many subjects.....or shall I say "trivia?" ;-)just a fantastic sense of humor and an infectious laugh!

A highly intelligent man who not only had a great philosophical mind, but a truly passionate heart. His simplicity and humility were both surprising and disarming which created many friends in his life from my perspective.

He loved his school kids.....but especially his own sons and daughters whom he cherished and who equally cherished him as a exemplary role model and bastion of integrity, strength and principle.

I have many fond memories of helping him work on his old VW van which he seemed to love.

When I turned 18, he insisted on me calling him by his first name, which was quite awkward for me!.....thanks for plunging me into adulthood, Fred!

Fred was a real influence on my young life and I will always be grateful that he treated me with such regard and friendship, even as a young man.

Thanks Fred, for everything. Rest in peace, love, joy and reunion with your beloved wife.
